'Precautionary Measure' Also Takes in Area to Be Inundated in Case of Foreign Army Invasion.

(Map in Page 12) THE HAGUE, Nov. 1.—(A)—A royal decree tonight established martial law in key Netherlands defense communities, including 500 of the nation's 1,200 smaller towns and villages, to bolster military plans and curb espionage.

Informed circles said the decree which covered parts of eight of the Netherlands' 11 provinces, was precautionary and not because of any external threats of violation of the country's neutrality.

These towns and villages are scattered over the entire country, but most of them are situated along the German-Netherlands frontier, the northern and western seacoast districts and in the regions which would be inundated in case the country were invaded by belligerent armies. No large cities were affected.

Most Frigid Day of Year in Dixie Brings Frosts to Georgia and Florida.

Winter advanced deep into the south yesterday and then retreated under a bright sun and clear skies.

It was the coldest day of the fall in Dixie, with sub-freezing temperatures extending into northern Alabama, eastern Mississippi and western Georgia.

Frosts penetrated as far south as Pensacola, Fla., the Alabama coast and south Georgia. Heavy frosts were reported in sections of Atlanta, where an official low of 34 was recorded.

Forecast Is "Warmer." Today, according to the United States Weather Bureau forecast, will be fair, and slightly warmer. Temperatures are expected to range between 35 and 65 degrees, compared with yesterday's high and low of 34 and 60.

Moscow Suspected of Trying to Sway U.S. Neutrality Fight; Recall of Envoy Is Demanded.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL. WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 .-(AP) - President Roosevelt, who had been criticized yesterday by Russian Premier Molotoff for "intervening" for Finland, dug up and reissued tonight an official record which recalled that Russia had given 'profound sympathy" only six months ago to his efforts to prevent attacks on Finland, Poland an other European nations. Mr. Roosevelt's action apparently was both a reply to the Molotoff speech and a new effort to show that a bond of sympathy links Finland and the United States.

Dramatic Action. It was a dramatic action, in which the President, as the leading actor, remained off the stage. It was a drama almost without words or even pantomine.

The President merely directed his press secretary, Stephen I. Early, to run off on a mimeograph machine new copies of cablegrams dated last April. Early then handed the texts to reporters. (Effect of the publication was to administer a slap to Russia by placing on record Kalinin's support of Mr. Roosevelt's peace program in contrast to Molotoff's declaration before the Soviet parliament that President Roosevelt was meddling in delicate negotiations between Russia and Finland by lending his "moral support" to Finland, according to the United Press. (Molotoff's remarks were based on Roosevelt's recent cablegram to Kalinin expressing the hope that Soviet expansion in the Baltic states would not endanger the sovereignty or integrity of the Finnish republic.

("One might think," the premier said sarcastically. "that matters are in better shape between the United States and, let us say, the Philippines or Cuba, which have long been demanding freedom, and independence from the United States and cannot get them, than between the Soviet Union and Finland. The scene of the attack, as reported by the freighter Coulmore, a 352-foot collier, was 62.31 degrees west of Greenwich, 100 miles nside the Pan-American "neutrality zone" fixed at the recent Panma conference.

(Meanwhile, the American freighter City of Flint, in the hands of a German prize crew, wormed her way southward along the coast of Norway in an effort to evade the British blockade. Norwegian and German authorities kept secret any information they had but the ship's desination was believed to be Hamburg. The likeliest course, shipping circles agreed, would be for the Flint to follow the rough Norwegian coast, then stay within Swedish territorial waters before going into the Baltic where sea lanes are controlled by the German fleet.) Official quarters here said that if it were established that a submarine had fired a torpedo within the neutral zone the United States would consult immediately with other American republics as to what steps to take. The diplomatic action probably would result in a protest to the offending power, either by the United States and the other American republics individually or by joint action. At the Panama conference no decision was made as to just what action would be taken if the neutral zone were violated. The coast guard cutter Bibb, one

THUG EXONERATED IN DISHROON DEATH

Brain Tumor, Not Blow in 20-Cent Robbery, Is Held To Be Cause.

Death of Samuel Wesley Dishroon, 17, was caused by a "rare brain tumor" rather than a blow inflicted by a robber several months ago, it was decided yesterday at an autopsy performed by Dr. J. C. Blalock, county physician

The youth, who lived at 401 Richardson street, S. W., died Tuesday in Grady hospital. He had been held up and robbed of 20 cents several months ago while he was pushing a cart on an Atlanta street, Coroner Paul Donehoo had reported and Superior Court Judge John D. Humphries ordered the autopsy at Donehoo's request.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon. The Rev. C. E. Piehoff will officiate and burial will be in Hillcrest

Chairman E. L. Almand, insurance agent, and Commissioner J. A. Commissioner Gloer Halley, manager furniture department of a downtown department store, said he had no power to conform with such a demand, while Dr. Charles R. Adams offered the grand jury his co-operation.

The letters were in reply to a request of Wardlaw that county commissioners "state in writing" whether or not they would stop using their official positions to solicit business from county employes. Previous questionnaires sent out by the grand jury showed 45 per cent of the employes did business with county commissioners.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 2, 1939.

Too Much Secrecy

Of all the multitudinous activities of government in this modern age there is none more directly concerned with the public interest than the expenditure of welfare, or relief moneys.

It is, of course, axiomatic in a democracy that the affairs of government, whether it be local or national, should be open to inspection by the public or its properly authorized representatives, at all times. Government officials, appointed or elected, are, in the final analysis, but servants of the people and the records of such employes must always be open to the employer, the public.

If this condition does not exist, government ceases to be a democracy and becomes, at best, a bureaucracy and, at worst, a dictatorship.

This is especially true whenever expenditure of tax moneys or public funds of any nature is concerned. The people who pay, the citizens, have an inalienable right to know, always, how their money is being spent and whether a reasonable dollar's worth of public service is being returned for each dollar collected.

This being true, the attitude of the Fulton County Welfare Board becomes more and more difficult to understand or to excuse. For too long this board has been reluctant to let its inner workings be made public. The situation reached a climax on Tuesday. At that time the board had been closeted with the chairman of the county grand jury and other jurors for hours. It was reliably reported that steps had been taken, by the welfare board, of vital interest to the public. Yet, when asked to verify or deny these reports, the only answer forthcoming was "we have nothing to say for publication."

The county welfare board is entrusted, annually, with the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars of the public money. Its duty is, probably, the most urgent of all. That is, to provide for those who, hy age, sickness or misfortune, are unable to provide for them-

There has never been, despite the large sums expended, sufficient funds to provide properly for all those who need public assistance in order to live. There is a constant call upon the people to furnish more money for this purpose.

The handling of such funds is, in the truest sense, a sacred trust. The welfare administration, beyond all others, should be above suspicion. It should, at all times, command the complete confidence of the public and enjoy a degree of trust irreproachable.

Yet there have been, in Fulton county, many criticisms of this same governmental function. Officials of the welfare organization have been accused of misuse of funds or of properties. These charges, many of them, have yet to be proved and, in the meantime, it is essential the accused be given the benefit of all doubt.

This does not mean, however, that the public must be kept in ignorance of developments. Such secrecy but adds to suspicion and is likely to be considered, by many people, corroborative

Public confidence is essential to the administration of public relief funds. There can be no surer way to destroy that public confidence than to insist, without explanation, "We have nothing to say for publication."

Czechs Object

News dispatches telling of serious clashes between the Nazis and the Czechs in Prague come as no surprise to observers of the European scene. Such incidents as those which resulted from demonstrations in observance of the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the Czecho-Slovak Republic were predicted both before and after the Munich conference which brought about the apparent destruction of the little Central European nation. The Nazis were warned then that the Czechs, who had tasted well of democratic freedom during the 20 years of national independence, would prove indigestible to the German body politic.

This fact-obvious to all but the Germanswas borne out in many minor ways, prior to the major conflict which occurred recently. For the Czechs, although to all outward intents and purposes yielding to the Nazi yoke, were doing anything but that. In scores of ways, the Czechs showed their discontent. The rumblings, the smouldering, the poorly-concealed hatred were there, tangible, yet intangible, superficial,

For the democracies of the world, the vitality of the Czechs, their determination that the republic shall live again, is a heartening thing. It means the souls of men who have tasted freedom yearn for freedom, that the beautiful abstractions - liberty, justice, tolerance - are forces no less real than cannon, and that the spiritual values of life can be neither chained nor conquered.

$26,000,000, Anyway

More than two decades ago, before the United States entered the first World War, explosions at Black Tom and at Kingsland, N. J., destroyed 2.000,000 pounds of munitions and a half million three-inch shells

At the time of both blasts the United States was a neutral. A claims commission has now ruled these explosions were caused by the imperial German government, through sabotage. Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, umpire of that German-American commission, this week awarded $50,000,000 as damages to those who suffered loss in the two tragedies.

Inasmuch, however, as the German representatives on the commission denied responsibility of their government and, further, because Germany has deposited only $26,000,000 with the United States Treasury to meet the award, there is really no chance of the claimants receiving ore than that sum. Even though they don't at the full $50,000,000, half a loaf is better than no bread.

The chief value of the finding of Justice Roberts, however, may be found in the warning le son implicit in the judgment. With another war declared in Europe, with the probability this country may again manufacture munitions of war for either side in that conflict, the danger of new sabotage, of new secret attacks on American plants, is made clear.

Certainly some of the present European governments are no better, ethically, than those of a quarter century, or so, ago. The intervening years have witnessed a retrogression in international morality. There is today even less observance of obligations of honor by nations than there was when Germany dubbed its pledged treaty with Belgium as a mere "scrap of paper." Dissimulation, deceit and violation of treaties is now a recognized weapon in diplomacy and in war.

This being the case, it is not to be expected the present belligerent nations of Europe will hesitate, if opportunity comes, to repeat, on American soil, the outrages of Black Tom and

No precautions which can properly be taken by this country to avoid new outrages of this type should be neglected. It is right that either side should be permitted to buy goods in this country, to pay for them here and to transport them in their own ships away from these shores. Anything less would be unneutral and a pitiful surrender of American rights. But never for a moment should it be forgotten that the manufacture of munitions of war is, a dangerous occupation, whether it be in the English midlands, in the south of France or on the soil of America.

The saboteur may be just as destructive as the big guns and bombing planes.

The 62nd Year

Today is the 76th birthday of William M. Turner, foreman of The Constitution pressroom. A man, moreover, whose lifetime statistics contain figures more impressive than this.

For, on June 28th last, he began his 62nd year of service with this paper, a record hard to equal in all the records of employment. He was just out of school, a boy of 14, when he went to work in the old office on Broad street, as operator of the folding machine. They used them then, and for years after, when papers were printed on flatbed presses.

Another startling record comes to light each ar in April. For it is the anniversary month of Turner's elevation to the post of pressroom foreman, a position he has held ever since. Last April was the 43rd anniversary of that pro-

It is an achievement for pride in any man, when he is still active in his life occupation on his 76th birthday; when he has worked for more than 61 years for one employer, but when he has headed his own department for 43 years, achievement becomes, in this unsettled day, little short of miracle.

Dr. Dafoe says the Dionne girls know nothing of the war. If the little dears could read the censored dispatches, it would be the same.

A recent decree of the government in Turkey has outlawed whirling dervishes. After giving whole careers to the art, these unfortunates now have nowhere to turn.

MEETING NEW DEMANDS

(From The Washington Post.)
Agriculture and manufacturing are not the only pursuits that are plagued by the dilemma of overproduction and underconsumption. Some of professions are confronted by the same baffling problem. Doctors subsist on low incomes while thousands of human beings die for want of medical care. The legal profession is overcrowded, yet legal service and frequently the simple processes of justice are beyond the reach of the masses.

The efforts now being made to close these gaps between the supply of and demand for professional services are among the most hopeful trends

Efforts to make the advantages of legal advice available to the rank and file are gaining momentum. In his address to the District Lawyers Guild last week, Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, of the University of Wisconsin, outlined plans solve the dilemma of too many lawyers and too little legal service. The progressive approach Dean Garrison pointed out, is to extend legal service to the great middle-income group. Coincident with this movement, there is a sincere attempt in many communities to adapt the machinery of justice to the needs of the poor. In Washington, Judge Nathan Cayton, of the municipal pal court, has taken leadership of this trend. Following his success in securing a small claims conciliation court, he turned his attention to the establishment of a landlord-tenant branch of the municipal court. Now he is again trying to modernize procedure, simplify obsolete legal termi-nology and reduce costs so that the man of small means can defend his interests at the bar of

Some of the changes sought would make it ossible for laymen to dispense with legal advice a trivial cases. That is as it should be. If the in trivial cases. rank and file find it practical to carry their grievances to court, however, new opportunities for lawyers are certain to arise—providing, of course, that they effectively organize themselves to meet

WAR ORDER PROSPECTS WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 .- In the French war buying, some islands of certainty begin to appear. Buying will start in earnest the instant the arms embargo is repealed. While the British may be rather cautious at first, French orders will be prompt and sizable. Armaments aside, French inquiries for goods and contracts in negotiation already total over $30,000,000. Airplane companies will get the lion's share of the earlier armament orders, but both British and French will branch out later, buying largely in many fields.

Above all, no one American banking house will receive commissions or control the placing of orders, as J. P. Morgan & Co. did in the first World War. Acting on the strongest hints from the President himself, the British and French governments are not only appointing their own purchasing missions, they are also preparing to get advice from widely inclusive panels of American bankers and industrialists, and to have most of the tasks of a fiscal agent performed by members of their own states.

In short, nobody will have the inside track. Furthermore, no commercial banker is even likely to make a profit. The British and French can give the banks only their deposits, and it may be that payment for war orders will be cleared through the New York Federal Reserve Bank from the central banking institutions in Paris and London. On the other hand, nobody will be left out in the cold either. Stories have been going around that, because of the administration's enmity toward the famous firm, the British and French missions would sedulously avoid any contact with Morgan's. This is not so. Morgan's is on a basis of equality with all the other banks, and advice has already been sought from them as from the others.

AWAITING THE SIGNAL The British purchasing mission is already on this side of the Atlantic. waiting in Canada for final action on the arms embargo to cross the border of the United States. Headed by Colonel Greenly, a member of the famous English engineering and manufacturing firm of Babcock & Wilcox, it is composed of a group of financial and industrial experts, and, contrary to report, boasts no member from the house of Morgan's London affiliate. It has already done much buy-ing in Canada, the Argentine and countries where payments can be made in sterling. These are naturally being favored over this country, where every order exhausts precious British foreign exchange. The British thought it good policy to wait until the neutrality problem was out of the way for all but the most essential buying. such as surgical forceps, optical goods and other articles obtainable only here. The French, whose army is much more efficient in ordinary supplies, followed a different policy. Officers of the French army, navy and air corps reached this country soon after war was declared. These officers, seeking blankets, shoes, electrical goods, motorcycles, trucks, machine tools and raw materials, have already built up the $30,000,000 total mentioned above.

Thus far, the French officers have worked through the commercial and financial counselors of the French embassy, M. Garreau-Dombasle and M. Leroy Beaulieu. Garreau-Dombasle has served as co-ordinator, and to date the National City Bank of New York has been chiefly relied on for advice and has received the bulk of the French deposits. At least one French problem, concerning a contract for electrical supplies, has been taken to Morgan's, however, and a broader system of consultation will be instituted later on. The present setup has worked well enough to let the French government delay decision on the personnel of its purchasing mission, but a mission will ultimately be sent to this country to take

A WISE INFLUENCE The squabble over neutrality revision has greatly delayed British and French purchases of all sorts, of raw materials as well as armaments. Preferring to have the raw materials processed in this country, the two governments have waited to see whether this would be possible Now their purchasing systems will soon be complete, with rate, independent New York offices, huge staff of experts and clerical workers, groups of advisers among our ablest businessmen, and complex legal and financial machinery. In the British and French decision to do the purchasing job themselves, administration influence was certainly important. But for reasons of public opinion, if for no others, it must be admitted the influence was wisely exerted.

A Bath For Henry Grady.

Of recent weeks a number of people have written to this desk de-ploring the soot-encrusted, filthy condition of the Henry Grady monument, at Forsyth and Marietta streets.

There can be no refuting their charges that the monument is disgracefully dirty. But on one point practically all these correspondents

Anyway, it was done.

Rather Hopeless.

It isn't so difficult to clean the nonument. But keeping it clean s another problem altogether. For the central portion of Atlanta is, you must realize, quite a dirty place. The atmosphere is heavily charged with smoke and soot. It comes from the railroad locomotives that pass along the tracks through the heart of the em belching clouds of black smoke

Then the smokestacks of our buildings and factories all contribwe have a city smoke inspector and I'm willing to grant that conditions, in this respect, have shown much improvement of comparayears. But amount of industrial smoke in Atanta's air is still far too great. Greater than in most cities. You've only to drive through the streets adjacent to some of our larger plants to see the fog of smoke hanging in the areas sheltered rom wind to know this is true.

It all seems pretty hopeless. Even if Smoke Inspector Jones could get 100 per cent observance of the anti-smoke ordinances from operators of factories buildings, there would still be the ocomotives under the viaducts. And they are probably the worst offenders of all.

To all the correspondents who want Grady to have a bath, I'd say good luck and go to it. Better to be clean for a couple of months, than never to be clean at all.

Horrifying LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 1.—
The incompetents, failures, half-wits and thieves, the ecclesiastical free-booters and body snatchers who rule the emotions of this city have got something at least in the issue known as ham-and-eggs, which goes to the voters of California on November 7 in the form of an amendment to the state constitu-

This is a proposal to create an absolute dictatorship. It is the most audacious, the most absurd and, at the same time, the most horrifying suggestion ever pre-sented to the voters of any American community since history run-neth not to the contrary. Disguised as an old-age pension plan whereby all persons who are rising 50 years and who are, with variations, citizens of California, would receive $30 every Thursday, this in-credible fraud is no pension plan at all but an invitation to the voters to elect either of two designated individuals to a position to be known as that of "administra-

A total of 13,952 hunting and fishing licenses, representing $21,-968.50 in cash, were issued by the State Department of Revenue during the month of October, Com-missioner T. Grady Head announced yesterday.

For the corresponding months last year, 14,263 licenses, represent $23,670.75, were issued under the old system, the Department of Wild Life reported, but it was pointed out these figures represented collections over several months, which were turned in by counties in a lumpsum and therefore did not furnish an accurate comparison.

Breaking down last month's report, 3,286 state resident hunting licenses, valued at $10,697.50, were issued; 9,917 county resident licenses at $9,917; 10 state non-resident licenses at $1,917; 10 state non-resident licenses at dent licenses, valued at $125, and 36 county non-resident hunting licenses, valued at $180.

Fishing licenses were issued as follows: 637 state resident fishing licenses, valued at $796.25; three state non-resident fishing licenses, at $15.75; 33 fresh water fish sales at $165; 30 state trappers at $90.

NAZIS SINK OWNSHIP WINDSOR'S BROTHER Subs Not Only Nazi Menace While This Roams Seas ROAD WORK BEGUN

Loose somewhere among the world's sea lanes are two German raiders capable of doing millions of dollars' worth of damage to Allied shipping. They are the pocket battleships Deutschland and Admiral Scheer. Their men-ace lies in the fact that most of the British ships fast enough to catch them do not have guns big enough to sink them, and most of the ships with big enough guns aren't fast enough. Which is a knotty problem. However, Britain's fast battle cruiser, the Hood, has a speed of more than 30 knots and carries 15-inch guns. British naval men think, too, that several fast cruisers, working together, even though these have only 8-inch guns, might account for a pocket battleship. A UTUMN in New York, with its gay shows, parties, and night clubs, and the ever-present parade of feminine fashions, is presented Sally's readers today in interesting fashion by that charming Atlantan, Emily Robinson Head. Emily went to New York two weeks ago with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Robinson; her brother and sister, Al and Jennie Robinson Thornwell; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. The group formed congenial parties at theaters, night clubs, and at the closing sessions of the fair. One of the grandest parties, according to Emily, was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Strupper in the Corinthian room of the St. Regis. In addition to the Atlanta group, the guests included Jack Logan and Charles Gambrell. Each feminine guest received a beautiful lei ned of gardenias, roses and carnations.

Emily writes the following interesting high lights of the trip: "Daddy entertained at a party at the St. Regis roof, where there is a gorgeous floor show. A contraption exactly like a large drawer pulls out over the ballroom floor and lovely girls give a dance on ice skates. Everything has a spicy touch, the music, the colors, the shows, the drinks, to say nothing of the dancing, which has been revolutionized. Everyone takes dancing lessons. I saw Jane Pickens, the former Atlanta girl, at one of the night clubs, and she is charming and did an amusing take-off on an opera singer.

She has a grand voice. "As to fashions, there is a great deal of color and a still greater amount of fur, and especially fur hats. You simply must have a fur hat with jeweled clips. There is plenty of red, the tomato kind, always worn with black, but turquoise is now even bigger news. There are many smart turquoise turbans of velvet and jersey to be worn to cocktail parties with mink coats (if you have one, of course!). But mink-dyed squirrel and fitch are good substitutes. Burnt sugar is most popular, and a certain shade of citron, but stop-light is still holding its own. Things are very gay and better than usual and one doesn't hear a great deal of the war. The music has a decided jungle flavor.

"Jane Withers is here and I am going to be with her tomorrow, renewing a friendship begun in Hollywood last summer. New York is still a wonderful place to visit and pep up your mind while deflating your pocketbook. I consider 'The Man Who Came To Dinner, 'The Philadelphia Story,' with Katharine Hepburn, and a review called 'Too Many Girls' the pick of the theaters."

After leaving New York, Emily visited in Washington, where she was among the guests at the "ranch party" given by Jack Lo-gan at his place just outside of the It was a fancy dress affair and one of the gayest of the sea-son in capital social circles. Other Atlanta guests included Jennie and Al Thornwell and Josephine and Jim Robinson Jr.

Atlanta Woman's Stove Has Traveled Over Three Continents

Old World Recipes Rule In Transplanted Kitchen

By Sally Saver.

Out in Avondale in a quiet English house stands a little stove which has traveled farther than most of us ever do and seen more of the world. This little stove is German by birth, but when it was bright and shiny-new it was bought by a bride and groom and taken into Holland (The Netherlands, as all the Dutch and Europeans call it), to help the bride in making apple strudel and cheese cake for her own table. After some years in the Netherlands the master and mistress moved to Dutch East Indies, and a year and a half ago they came to Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Leistl are the owners of the little stove, and it mus have served them well during their marriage so that they would not be parted from it in their travels from continent to continent. It is a gas stove and was made to burn artificial gas, but when it came to live in Atlanta it had to undergo a change so that it could burn natural gas. It is as faithful as it ever was, not given to temperament and tantrums, says its mistress, and it shows no change in character in its new role as a natural gas burner. It hakes broils simple acter in its new role as a natural gas burner. It bakes, broils, simmers, boils and fries as contentedly as before.

On a special bookshelf in the cozy living room, by a comfortable chair and a business-like low table, is a row of cook books, most of them written in German. But one book had a very familiar name-plate—it was a copy of the cook book which was distributed by The constitution some months ago.

"That is my main reference book on American cooking," said Mrs. Leistl. Although she pointed out many chapters on American cooking in German cook books.

Mrs. Leistl loves cooking and housekeeping, she said, and her house and kitchen give evidence of this fact. A cunning spice cabinet this fact. A cunning spice cabinet of European make hangs in her kitchen and she is familiar with many kinds of seasonings. I asked her for one of her favorite recipes which she kindly gave. And here it is:

KARTOFFEL KLOSSE SAUERBRATEN (Potato Dumplings and Pickled Meat)

Potato Dumplings. Select enough potatoes for a meal. Boil and mash two-thirds of them, just as you would for mashed potatoes. Grate one-third raw, keeping them immersed in warm water to pre-vent discoloration. Press water from grated potatoes, carefully; mix grated raw potatoes and mashed potatoes and add salt. Cut white bread into small cubes, and fry in butter until a golden brown. Make potato balls with a cube of fried bread in the center of each. Drop in boiling salted water and cook, uncovered 20 minutes. Serve piping hot with meat.

Sauerbraten.

Seleca a pot roast of beef. Take vinegar, diluted with water to partly cover roast and heat it to boiling point with pickling spices, peppercorns, bay leaves and cloves added. Pour this hot pickling mixture over the raw roast and let stand in refrigerator for several days, turning meat often to flavor it evenly. (About three days in summer, six or seven days in winter are about the right time for pickling meat, says Mrs. Leistl). After meat has remained in pickling mixture for the right length of time, remove and roast as you would any other roast, after first browning it on both sides in fat to which a little minced onion has been added. Roast slowly until done, and during the last few minutes of roasting pour a cup of sour cream over the meat.

She said that someone asked her one day what she did and her reply was that she was everything from a missionary to a veterinary! The young man who is the farm adviser, Mr. Jakes, is only 23 years old and works closely with the county agent, Mr. Kerr, who was also with us. It is grand to find anyone of this age on this kind of a job, because it requires enthusiasm and ingenuity and it means a great deal to the younger people growing up on the project to have someone to whom they can anticipation, but happily for me my old friend had not yet lamp-ed the sourface article—but, boy, talk who will understand their problems.

These are not picked families and the life is none too easy. One family has 11 mouths to feed, another nine, and the smallest family I saw had five. This last family had succeeded in getting linoleum for the floor of the living room and a sofa and an upholstered chair which the woman had re-covered herself. Even in the family of 11, they had found time to plant flowers around the house. When I left, the woman broke off one of her chrysanthemums and handed it to me, a gesture which showed the spirit of the community.

I felt they were all willing and anxious to help each other and anyone they felt needed their aid. They wanted to give as well as receive and were very proud of what they had accomplished in growing food for themselves and their stock to tide them over the winter. They are planning to improve their land by proper care and one man showed me his cottonseed ready for planting.

During the World War, the land they are now farming was an aviation field where our boys trained for service overseas. I could not help thinking that its use today is perhaps more profitable to the nation. I like to see our boys learn to fly, but not for the purpose of destroying other people's homes.

Man Asks Help For Lasting Marriage

By Caroline Chatfield.

He's going to be married in December after a short and snappy courtship. He doesn't know much about women because this is his first and only love. He would like to know what a young husband can do to insure against divorce.

I know the answer to that one and if he will accept it he may have happy days, sleep-sweet nights, peace and contentment, with plenty of excitement thrown in to keep peace from palling.

Young or old, rich or poor. high or low, no wife can quite believe in her husband's love unless he says it with support and fidelity and habitually puts his love into words. When all is laid on the line, the three litthat have inspired the human heart since time began, are sweetest music to a woman's ears. She is never so low in spirit but they lift her. She is never so old but they thrill her.

Naturally his words must be backed up with visible proof, things over and above what the law requires of him (The law requires him to support his wife and be faithful). Every woman knows that the over-and-above things are tenderness and generosity, compli-ments and confidences: and the greatest of these are confidence.

Let a man refuse to satisfy his wife's curiosity and she's set back. Let her get the idea that her husband is holding out on her and she's frightened. Let him deceive her and she's there-after suspicious. Let him lie to her and she's sunk. She was born knowing that a man's confidence is the ultimate, incontrovertible proof of his affection. So, whatever his sins of omission or commission she will wipe the slate clean if he tells her his

The close and comfortable companionship that every woman wants with her husband is finished when he's ducking and dodging to keep her from knowing what he's been up to. Concealments, deceptions, little white lies and big black ones will give any man the fireside fidgets and when he gets the fidgets the jig is up; no more fun at home for either party.

Isn't is strange that lasting love and the success of the great adventure—marriage, hinge on such small matters as a few "words fitly spoken," the com-mon courtesies that are practiced with casual acquaintances and confidence, full and free? Not so strange either when you consider that these are the things that awaken love in the first instance and put it into the hearts of a pair to put their love in perpetuity. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

As You Reduce Keep Muscles Well-Toned

You may have had a beautiful You may have had a beautiful figure 30 pounds or so ago. And you may think that if you could just trim that excess off, you would be your "old sylph" again. But it isn't necessarily so!

But it isn't necessarily so!

For a bad example, we'll say that you are a size 40 with a 36-inch waist. All right, suppose you go ahead and lose your 30 pounds. And in the process you lose four inches off the bust and three off the waist. You're slimmer, but your figure is worse!

In that case, you should plan to trim at least six inches off the waistline—not three. And the only possible way of doing that is to exercise consistently to make the waist muscles so strong that they hold your midriff in, firm and slim.

You can always count on los-ing excess inches through the bust when you reduce your weight. But even for this measurement exercise is an essential. Unless the muscles are toned and shortened along with the weight loss, the re-sult will be a sagging of the tissues. You don't want that to hap-

Here is an exercise that uses the muscles of the bust and waist: Stand on the knees on the floor. Have the knees several inches apart, and hold the arms out at the sides, shoulder-level. Swing backward and touch the left hand to the right heel, return to the starting position, and swing to the other side. Be sure that you keep the hips tuked under. For a hipline that has wandered from symmetry, rolling is an effective and not too strenuous slimming measure. It is particularly helpful in smoothing fat pads on the sides of the hips. Try this one: Lie on the back, hold the legs together and straight, with the feet slightly off the floor. Place the hands out at the sides, elbows slightly bent, and roll from left to right and back, going away over on the sides of the hips and thighs. This exercise also tends to strengthen the tummy muscles. You can take your choice as to the type of exercise you do for each measurement. The leaflet, "Streamline the Midriff," contains some fast workers for taking down the waist and hips. There is a'so a set of rolling exercises for the hips. To make your program give you a lovely figure, you should concentrate more or less on the set you particularly need, withset you particularly need, with out neglecting general exercise for all the measurements. What you want is not just less weight—you

Williamson Says Tech, L.S.U. Best Long Shots

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

Every one of the 700-odd teams the Williamson system keeps track of is a pet of the system. That goes whether it is a winning team or a losing team. Several years ago Knox College—Old Siwash to you—received a lot of publicity because of its long run of losses. Plenty of the colleges deserve credit for putting out a team each year against relatively fearful odds. Such schools are Defiance, Rio Grande, Kenyon, Alfred Holbrook and others. Sevence which weed to he one of they went newer in football, diswance, which used to be one of the great powers in football, due to shifting sands during the past few years has bravely fought a losing battle in the major Southeastern conference. This year Sewanee and Knox are doing right well.

The Holbrook-Kenyon score came in late. Last week the system mentioned the scoreless tie between Holbrook and Rio Grande, each of which had failed to make one single touchdown this sea-son. The same thing applied to Kenyon. The Holbrook-Kenyon score last Saturday was 0-0. It looks like such brave strugglers can't even score against each other.

Now back to matters of more general interest. The Sunday games ran true to form except for the 14-12 upset of St. Mary's of California by the University of Portland, Ore., a mighty fine outfit in the minor circuits. Portland is the team that recently held the great Oregon State outfit to a 12-14 decision.

Counting Sunday and late Saturday returns, the Williamson system batted about 85 per cent, discounting upsetting ties, on

This week should be a relatively quiet one compared with some of the hectic football of past weeks. Most of the games should run true to the Williamson scientific football ratings. Picking a fewshigh lights, the consensus may consider the fol-lowing selections by the system as probably radical: Kentucky over Alabama, Washington and Lee over Washington of St. Louis, Sewanee over Chattanooga, Baylor over Texas Christian, Auburn over Boston College, Navy over Pennsylvania, Iowa over Purdue, Syracuse over Michigan State, San Jose State over the College of the Pacific, Temple over Hardin-Simmons, Baldwin-Wallace over Case, Hiram over Mt. Union, Western Reserve over Ohio Wesleyan, Omaha over South Dakota State, St. Benedict over Wichita, and Utah State over Idaho.

Those all ought to be hard battles and closely fought. If mathematical ratings, however, are followed, the system's favorites

Best long shots of the week, which should not be such big upsets after all, would be for Georgia Tech to upset Duke. Louisiana State's Ken Kavanaugh to snag a few passes more than Ten-nessee can handle, and for Oregon State to upset mighty Southern California. Oregon State, by the way, was mentioned in early September alone by the Williamson system as possibly the best dark horse of the 1939 season. Time will tell.

Jackets Improve in Drill Against 'Duke'; Bulldogs End Work

NO, THIS ISN'T MERCER'S LINE

It's mighty fanciful, assuredly, and nothing of the kind may ever happen, but you can't blame a fellow for day-dreaming once in a while.

For instance, there was another communique from the Durham front yesterday. Subject: Duke's worried about speedy

And while reading the epistle I fell to thinking how revo-itionary it would be if there had been such a subject as: Dukes Expect To Slaughter Tech's Singer Midgets.

Then, instead of praising Ector, Gibson, Bosch and Murphy, the story would go on to say that Duke was used to playing men, not little Tom Thumbs, and that they didn't intend to let any little squirt like Bosch, for instance, give them any trouble.

The story would continue by pointing out the prowess of the Duke forward wall and would give unstinted praise to the greatness of the McAfee brothers, Roger Robinson and Jap

It would be pointed out that Pittsburgh was "blind hog" lucky to win and that by all rights Duke is another Rose Bowl contender. In conclusion, the story would say that Duke is preparing confidently for the game, and where does that undersized Tech team get off, anyway?

Similarily, the tone of Tech stories would be different. There would be polite inquiries as to how Duke claims such greatness when Pitt already has been twice beaten, Wake Forest walloped by North Carolina, and Colgate and Syracuse are hardly better than bushers,

They would ask what manner of thinking it is that causes a player to lateral to an oppnent and that, anyway, great teams usually find a way to win the close ones.

No limit to what else might be said. It could be pointed out that a late touchdown pass just failed to click against Notre Dame and that, by all rights, Tech should be unbeaten. Notre

And it might be added that if Tech's deception fooled the Irish, Vandy and Auburn, where does Duke get

All this came to mind reading the "alarm" stories. And it would be refreshing, indeed, if two noted rivals some day should adopt such tactics during the week before their game.

GREAT DRAWING POWER.

The Tech-Duke games have developed great drawing power. The rush for seats is almost unprecedented. All the "fancy" seats are gone-and a sell-out is assured.

Such a situation provides an adequate answer to the critics who claim high-pressure tactics are ruining the college game. Tech could pack more than 40,000 folks into Grant field Saturday—if there were 40,000

As it is, the top will be around 30,000, and all available space will be taken up then. The Jackets have captured the fancy of the football populace locally. The uniformly small backfield, with its multiplicity of tricks, has performed feats of magic behind a normal-sized line this season. Football fans like to see spectacular offensive play and the Jackets have supplied it all season. Duke, likewise, has been a potent offensive force with the exception of the game against Tech will not take advantage of the Crimson Tide, however. While Frank Thomas' Big Red team is taking on Kentucky and Tulane, the Engineers will be playing Duke and Kentucky.

Alabama stands to lose two out of the next three games, which is what a real schedule will do for you.

Crackers Will Work With Savannah Again

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 1.—Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, announced here tonight following a conference with Dr. Eddie Whelan and Wallace Brown, new owners of the Savannah club, and Chick Autry, manager, that the S leaguers would have a working agreement with the Indians next season. This arrangement has been in effect for the past two

Mann did not deny reports that the Crackers also had selected Savannah for spring training in 1940. Atlanta teams have found the weather conditions excellent for training purposes at Savannah

It is considered almost a certainty that should the Indians elect to remedy their somewhat rough and treacherous playing field, the Crackers will return here to train.

Challedon Finishes OFF FOR BATTLE 1st ToWin $10,000

WITH BOSTON '11' Kayak II Is Half Length Back; Cravat Runs Third at Pimlico.

By SID FEDER.

PIMLICO RACE COURSE, BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—(P)—Chailedon, the local boy who made good, came home today to win the racing championship of the year.

With a great stretch drive that was all heart, William L. Brann's

Maryland-bred colt got up to take the Pimlico Special by half a length from Charles S. Howard's Kayak II, with Townsend B. Martin's Cravat

With the victory, Challedon took the $10,000 purse in this mile and three-sixteenths "Dream Race," a beautiful gold cup, and, since he was "top man" of the three outstanding horses in training today, he naturally earned ranking as the horse-of-the-year.

Most of the approximately 22,-000 fans who turned out for the gallop which young Alfred G. Vanderbilt conceived and brought to reality, were strong for the lo-cal lad even before the race started. As a result, the bay son of Challenger II-Laura Gal, winner of the Preakness last May on this same track, was backed down to $2.90 for $2 in the mutuels.

Only once was there any question about his coming home win-ning. That occurred as the threehorse field rounded into the stretch turn and Kayak made his bid, after chasing Challedon all the way up to that point. As they left the bend and headed for home, Kayak poked himself in front. And it was right there that the colt with the floppy ears and the mane that droops into his eyes to make him look like a big kid showed his heart.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, part of the 120-pound load on Challedon's back, went to the whip and Challedon stepped on the gas. He drew even halfway down the stretch, then slowly, but as surely as the color of the grass is green in the infield here, he shoved his nose in front. Then he was on top a front. Then he was on top a head, and finally his saddle was even with the South American bred's head. After that, he just traveled the final few yards to the wire without fooling around He finished the route in 1:59 fair time for a track, which, while in good condition, was not yet completely dried out from three days of rain. EARNS $184,535.

The purse in this winner-take-all affair boosted Challendon's earnings for the year to $184,535 and marked his ninth victory in 15 starts in '39. He has been out of the money only once this year and only once last year as a two-year-old. His two-year money earnings now are $252,235. He probably will be given a rest for the remainder of this season.

From the start, it was strictly two-horse race. Challedon broke slowly against the two top four-year-old horses, each of which was carrying 126 pounds in this weight-for-age event. In 50 yards, however, he had caught up and was in front.

As they passed the club house the first time around, he was on the inside, with Kayak, the South

It was late afternoon when the Brewster limousine slid into the city limits and on up to a hotel. Selia settled Rita luxuriously in a suite and herself in an adjoining one equally imposing. But the strain on their nerves made them wakeful throughout the night, and both looked haggard and avoided speaking of Roger when they met at breakfast in Selia's spacious sitting room.

Rita was filled with apprehen.

"There's nothing to talk over, Roger. It's all settled. You're marrying Miss Trout—and I congratulate you."

He hung his head sheepishly, got out slowly, "It's queer, Rita—but now you're here—I'm not so sure. When I'm with you, I always think you're the one."

"And when you are with Lela, it's different again, isn't it? I think I know you perfectly, Roger. So—I'll settle the question for you."

Rita was filled with apprehension until she finally persuaded Selia to go alone to Madame Brunet's shop, promising to meet her did this. She jumped up, went quickly to Roger, laid a hand gent-

This Roger Brewster matter was delicate. Roger, now hiding behind a woman's skirts, drew little sympathy from Rita, but she knew she owed Selia a real debt. The door was flung open just then, and there stood Roger.
Roger looked too surprised to speak. He stared at Rita as if he speak. He stared at Rita as if he preposterous, as something she could easily settle. If Roger faced his mother now it might set him to see-sawing again, so Rita en-couraged an immediate telephone conversation which might make Selia realize how beaten she was —reconcile her to future events. "We should, as a people, free ourselves forthwith from any legislative enactments that may prevent our freedom of action in con-nection with whatever interna-

Before a crowd of several hundred in the flag-draped unfinished lobby of the building, at Fortyeighth street and Sixth avenue, the silvery - haired financier domed a pair of red-starred work-man's gloves and, as "Clincher" Mike Dooley rammed a red-hot silver alloy rivet through one side of a bare girder, banged it fast with a pneumatic hammer.

It was his initial essay as an iron worker, except for 15 minutes when he sneaked in and ham-mered in a practice rivet.
